

Every initial contact starts with a discussion between Galenica and your development team. After an evaluation phase the outcome of these discussions results in a project proposal and a quotation along with a suggested contract framework.

When the project has been initiated, Galenica forms a team, highly qualified to carry out your project. Each project is assigned a project manager, who is responsible and directly involved with the evolving activities. The project manager works closely with you, keeping direct communication lines open at all times. Regular meetings are scheduled to update and proactively monitor the project. Firm, but realistic, targets and deadlines are set and met.

The project manager works closely with you, keeping direct communication lines open at all times.

